Self-Assessment Report

As part of your Lab Project submission, you must submit a self-assessment report. One (and only one) report is required per team. Please review the Deliverables section of the Lab Project handbook for more information about how to submit this report.

To prepare your team's self-assessment report, you must fill out the shaded areas of template report accurately (and only the shaded areas. The following information is required:

- The name of your team.
- For each item in the checklist, identify whether the task has been completed.
- For each requirement/user story:
  - Have you completed the requirement in full, partially or not?
  - Your team's submission can only be credited to have met a requirement if the marker is able to find it. If the presence of a requirement may not be obvious to someone unfamiliar with the requirement, use the Where? cell to explain where the marker can find it.
  - Use the Limitations cell to declare any limitations or assumptions you have made when implementing a feature. This can help a marker assess to what extent a requirement has been met.
